A Bizzare Bat

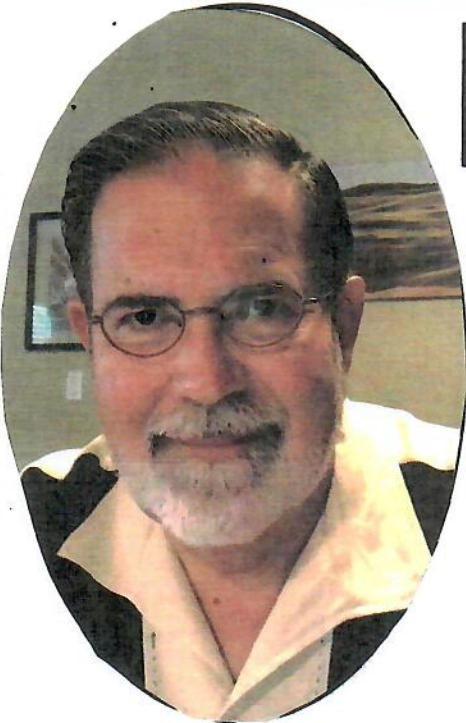

Hello, Lincoln Community and families, welcome to our first edition of Lincoln News! First, we would like to introduce our staff: Phoebe, Bernice, Nash, Gino, Leela, Iris, and Nick. We are excited to introduce our first lead story about the "Bizzare Bat!"

The bizzare bat taking his nap in the umbrella.

It was a Thursday September 1st at noon, when we were all crowded around the lunch tables getting ready to eat lunch. Ms. Pagan, one of our teachers, was opening up the umbrellas for us when.... AHHHH!!! A bat! The bat was hanging upside down near the top of the umbrella. It was only about the size of a crayon box, but it was just as scary as a dead rat singing a lullaby.

The next day, we went out for snack, we were all excited to check on our little visitor. We all gathered around the table where the umbrella was and slightly cracked it open. TO our surprise, our small flying friend had took off in the night.

In August Iris and Nick interviewed Mr. Scott. If you don't know who Mr. Scott is, he teaches music at Lincoln and Laguna School. He also teaches every Thursday at Lincoln. He loves juggling, ukulele, and boom whackers. Mr. Scott is an avid photographer with his iPad. We hope you enjoy this interview.

Iris: "Mr. Scott what is the best part of being a teacher?"

Mr. Scott: "Hmmm... well there is two parts of that, the first is watching when that little light bulb goes on above a students head... When all of a sudden you can just see Oh now I get it... th-that's one of the best things. Umm the other best thing is when you watch them move on past where you took them... for instant I have a chess student I have a student I teach chess too I've been working with him for a couple of years. When I first started out I was teaching him how to pieces with him, now when we play it's entirely... it's like a toss up who is going to win he might I might. Basically the person who makes the mistake loses. And sometimes that's him and sometimes it's me."

Nick: "Was he able to beat you in the beginning?"

Mr. Scott: "Oh no yes he was... he didn't know how to play." Iris: "Thank you."
